

Reflecting text about the past week.

The past week has been a very enjoyable week, I'm both motivated and ready for the assignments the next few weeks. Although introduction week is not the most interesting of subjects to learn about, it's a highly necessary aspect to be able to understand how the system works, I feel like I have a good grip. But the delivery part could be a little confusing. In terms of knowledge, I have to admit. I already knew a lot of these things, as I have an education in media and communication I'm rather used to both the delivery scheme, plagiarism rules and so forth. I'm looking forward to the study and can't wait to have that diploma in my hand in the end.